Wanda Cornelius : Ding Hao, America's Air War in China, 1937-1945 before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Ding Hao, America's Air War in China, 1937-1945:

Pelican Publishing Company in Louisiana was the publisher; and the month it came out, the Military Book Club selected it for their readership. I'm extremely proud of their efforts. John Wayne and John Carroll played out the story in the "Flying Tiger" movie, which I believe was released in 1942. Of course, I'm partial, but I highly recommend this book. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A good history of the Flying Tigers in China By J. B. Wiley A good history of the AVG (American Volunteer Group) - otherwise known as the "Flying Tigers" in China during World War II. My personal interest came about because an uncle of mine, Tom Cotton, is featured in the book. Tom survived the war and became one of the founders of Flying Tigers Airlines (now a part of Delta Airlines). Good action sequences and lots of historical tidbits I had not seen elsewhere. 3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. DING HAO - 5 STARS By Betty Short My husband co-authored this book. When it was first published by Pelican Publishing Company in Louisiana, the military book club liked it so much, they chose to offer it to their members. Not too long after the hardback book was printed, there was a fire at Pelican, destroying all remaining hardbacks. So, I like checking from time-to-time to see if one in good condition is available. I'm grateful to Book Department for making this possible.

"A mixture of genuine swashbuckling heroics and constant privation makes for a realistic and gripping story of men at war". A Military Book Club Selection.

About the Author Wanda Cornelius worked on William Allen White's Emporia Gazette in Kansas and later went on to work as a correspondent and editor for several Oklahoma and Louisiana dailies.
