though the stories were interesting, But I had to quit reading from all the jumping around in the book. One minute it was on Gettysburg the next it was on the house he was building then again when he was younger at his grandma's house. I finally gave up on reading it because of all the jumping around and couldn't focus on one thing. Other than that it had pretty cool stories in it. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Journey of Discovery? By Skip Gibson Well written but basic book an a Journalist's journey of discovery of his paranormal experiences living within driving distance (Ohio) of Gettysburg Battle Field, and renovating an historic home. I Met a Ghost at Gettysburg: A Journalist's Journey Into the Paranormal 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. and it made me feel sad for all those young boys who gave their lives By Marcia A. Falk Nothing new here. I had seen documentaries of haunted houses. I have been to the Gettysburg battlefield, and it made me feel sad for all those young boys who gave their lives. I could feel a spiritual presence there. It brought tears to my eyes.

There is an error in the ISBN listings, and you are likely to receive a used copy of "Working Poor" instead My mind was spinning at this point. Here I was – someone who grew up not believing in ghosts, a veteran journalist used to questioning everything – apparently having a conversation with a captain who fought at Gettysburg more than 150 years ago. Was it really possible? Was this some gigantic, wildly ingenious incredible hoax, or was this conversation somehow real? And what was it that brought me – a once dyed-in-the-wool paranormal doubter – to this haunted bridge in search of ghosts? - Don Allison After years of experiences that he could not rationally explain -- experiences that many people encounter, and do shrug off or rationalize - award winning newspaper editor and columnist Don Allison decided to search for answers. Experiences that Don and his grandson experienced in Gettysburg in the spring of 2015 finally convinced Don to present this serious look at the paranormal.. This is what noted paranormal investigator and historian Mark Nesbitt, author of the "Ghosts of Gettysburg" series of books, has to say about "I Met a Ghost at Gettysburg": "A great read. Very entertaining ... I think you've created an "Everyman's" explanation of paranormal experiences. Most people ignore or rationalize away true paranormal events. Your book covers the many types of paranormal events AS paranormal events, and explains how you came (reluctantly, in some cases) to those conclusions."

About the Author Don Allison is a lifelong resident of Williams County, Ohio, where the historic home he shares with his wife, Diane, is located. A 1976 graduate of Stryker High School, he earned a bachelor of arts degree in journalism from the University of Toledo in 1980. As a high school student in the early 1970's Don got his start in journalism as a sports writer and photographer with the weekly Advance Reporter newspaper, now known as the Village Reporter. He joined The Bryan Times as county editor in 1981, where he later served as editor and currently is senior editor. He has received numerous Associated Press and United Press International awards for his news, feature and column writing. Drawing on knowledge gained from a lifetime of studying the Civil War, Don has written extensively about that conflict. He and Diane are the founders of Faded Banner Publications, which publishes books on the Civil War and Northwest Ohio history. Don's previous books include "Hell on Belle Isle: Diary of a Civil War POW" and "The Best of On My Mind: The Bryan Times Newspaper Columns of Don Allison."
