KeupThis little gem of a book is filled with information we need in this day of uncertainty. First published in 1937 it focuses on the Jewish run Soviet destruction of Christian Russia. Ultimately, some 14 million people would be detained in the 53 camps which operated from 1934 to 1953. According to official Soviet data, some 1,053,829 people died in the camps from various causes. The modern-day Russian industrial cities of the Arctic, such as Norilsk, Vorkuta, and Magadan, were originally Gulags.
