read Spanish.

This book contains a translation of the report by the Spanish general staff on the battle of Albuera, fought on 16 May 1811. In the battle a combined army of Spanish, British and Portuguese defeated the French forces under Marshal Soult. This is a rare contemporary Spanish account of the victory.

About the Author I have been interested in the Peninsular War for nearly forty years specialising in the campaigns involving the British Army. During my research I have reprinted several rare works including the trilogy starting with 'Strictures on Napier's History of the Peninsular War and the correspondence between C E Long and Beresford. My first book 'The Fatal Hill' was centred around the battle of Albuera. My Book 'Wellington's Engineers' about the Royal Engineers during the Peninsular war was published in 2015. Visit www.wellingtonsengineers.co.uk I have just published two further books: - the Peninsular War Diary of Edmund Mulcaster RE, 1808-10. - The Peninsular War Services of General Sir George Allen Madden.
